

Průběh obhajoby diplomové práce:

Miss Hradilová presented the representation of terrorists in three novels by Americans: John Irving's Hotel New Hampshire, Philip Roth's American Pastoral and John Updike's Terrorist, all major novelist who have won major critical prizes and wrote best-sellers. The three novels are quite different in the style and presentation of the cells or individuals and Miss Hradilová analyzed the religious, social and dogmatic backgrounds of the individuals leading to their crimes. All the questions pertaining to religious dogma were particularly interesting in the novels which Miss Hradilová addressed.
