Questions and comments

Critical comments and overall contributions, total value of the thesis

The author undertook a qualitative research with a demanding analysis of semi-structured interviews. The conclusions are clear. We would expect more elaborated conclusions as for the aimed evaluation of the daily practice and strategies of dealing with multilingual and intercultural interactions with international/interregional projects. The conclusions are rather in accordance with the objective declared in the abstract of the thesis, i.e., "aimed to find out structural and individual strategies of managing multilingualism and interculturality within the BOKU - International Relations working team".

Questions and topics for discussion before the commission

6 co-workers of the BOKU International relations were interviewed and they were selected. How many employees do work at the BOKU International office?

Did the author find out examples of best practice in the analysed strategies that can serve for other teams in the intercultural environment? Or can the author make some recommendation to the analysed team?
